Pannone Lopes Devereaux & West Partner Brian J. Lamoureux is Featured Author in Leading National Education Journal on Using Social Media in Hiring Practices

Providence, RI – October 15, 2012 – Pannone Lopes Devereaux & West LLC (PLDW) Partner Brian J. Lamoureux, who has gained national attention for his knowledge on the emerging legal issues of social media, is a featured author in the September edition of the prestigious National Association of Colleges and Employers (NACE) Journal with an essay entitled, “How Social Media is Changing The Hiring Game”.

The NACE Journal was established in 1940, and is considered the nation's only professional magazine that addresses issues important to college career services officers and human resource and staffing managers.

Attorney Lamoureux is considered a thought leader on social media and the law and has written several published essays and columns on the complexities of the evolving social media case law. The NACE article discusses the most recent legal trends involving social media in recruiting and hiring, and provides some practical guidance for students and employers. Overall, Mr. Lamoureux cautions employers and recruiters “to tread carefully when using information found online about job candidates due to the legal risks associated with this activity.” To read the entire article, please log on to How Social Media is Changing The Hiring Game

Mr. Lamoureux is an accomplished business litigator and is a sought-after speaker and commentator on the use and abuse of social media in the workplace. His presentations and workshops incorporate the latest information from emerging case law around this subject matter and provide practical tips for employers and other professionals. He has presented in person and online to Fortune 100+ executives and hundreds of business leaders, education administrators and marketing and human resource executives locally, regionally and nationally.
