PLDO Attorneys Rebecca M. Murphy and Samantha M. Vasques Publish a Comprehensive Report on “Tortious Interference with an Expected Inheritance” in the U.S.

The article examines RI’s recent ground breaking decision that recognized the tort for the first time.

Rhode Island – September 11, 2017 – Pannone Lopes Devereaux & O’Gara LLC (PLDO) attorneys Rebecca M. Murphy and Samantha M. (Clarke) Vasques recently co-authored a comprehensive treatise entitled, A New Hope: Tortious Interference with an Expected Inheritance in Rhode Island, which was published in the summer edition of the Roger Williams University Law Review. The scholarly article details the genesis and development of tortious or wrongful interference with an expected inheritance and highlights differences in the approach states take regarding torts requirements as well as damages available to victims. It also delves into practical considerations, including exhaustion of remedies and when parties may initiate the tort action.

In addition, the two attorneys discuss Rhode Island Superior Court Associate Justice Michael A. Silverstein’s January 2017 decision in Americans United for Life v. Legion of Christ of North America, Inc., which found in favor of PLDO attorneys Bernard A. Jackvony and Attorney Murphy and their client, Americans United for Life (AUL). Judge Silverstein’s decision was ground breaking in that it recognized for the first time in Rhode Island’s history the independent tort of tortious interference with an expected inheritance.

“Though the Rhode Island Supreme Court has yet to weigh in, our firm’s recent victory for Americans United for Life breaks new ground in Rhode Island jurisprudence, creating a deterrent for wrongful conduct and, consequently, provides greater protections to vulnerable members of the Rhode Island populace,” said Attorney Murphy. “We are very pleased to provide this article as an in-depth examination of this important issue across the country with special attention paid to Judge Silverstein’s decision.”

Attorney Murphy is a member of the Estate and Trust Planning, Administration and Litigation Team. She has significant experience counseling clients in all areas of trust and estate planning and administration, Medicaid planning, disability planning, probate administration and trust and estate litigation.
